In the Canadian market, the P400 powertrain is highly regarded for its refined balance; the 395 hp turbocharged inline-six utilizes a 48V mild-hybrid system to deliver silky-smooth acceleration and a surprising 5.8-second sprint to 100 km/h, all while maintaining the muscle for a 7,716 lb towing capacity. This latest generation is a masterclass in "reductive design," featuring a seamless exterior with flush door handles and hidden-until-lit taillights. Despite its grand proportions, the SE SWB is remarkably maneuverable in urban environments thanks to standard All-Wheel Steering, which gives this full-sized flagship the turning circle of a much smaller vehicle. Inside, the cabin is a fortress of "Quiet Luxury," featuring Windsor leather, soft-close doors, and the massive 13.1-inch floating glass Pivi Pro interface. For the discerning Canadian driver, the Range Rover SE isn't just a mode of transport—it is a mobile private lounge capable of crossing continents or conquering a blizzard with equal poise.
